On day two, all delegates participated in breakout group discussions on three priority topics. The topics were:

1. The national mining policy framework: priorities, data collection and management.
2. The public and private sector policies that can best assure equitable local, regional and national distribution of economic and social benefits.

The Chair invited members to select at least one person from each region of the world to be member of that committee. Initial nominations include Senegal and Chile, once the latter becomes a member of the Forum.
